CONTRIBUTION PROPOSAL

15th Annual At-Home Dad's Convention
Saturday, October 2, 2010
Durham Museum, Omaha, NE

Recent research has shown that a father who is engaged and involved in the lives of his children reduces teen pregnancy, child neglect and substance abuse and improves performance in school.¹

The importance of being an involved father is reaching more and more men explaining why some have chosen to make the sacrifice of leaving the workplace and abandon social norms to become at-home dads.

In creating the National At-Home Dad Network, Daddyshome, Inc. is dedicated to supporting these at-home dads and works to improve their lives and those of their families through the convention and the support of several websites.

As a 501(c)(3) non-profit corporation, Daddyshome raises money to improve the education opportunities of the convention as well as makes it more affordable to these single-income families.

"I have left every convention feeling energized, reminded how fortunate I am to have this opportunity so few dads have, and even more excited about raising my kids."

- Jim, Boulder, CO
(7-time convention attendee)

Please consider contributing to Daddyshome for the At-Home Dad's Convention so these men can continue proving the importance of fathers in the lives of their children.

Convention Quotes

Why it's so important

“The number of at-home dads has grown by 60% over the last 4 years.”

- Today Show (airdate Apr. 2, 2008)

“Men who reported high levels of social support reported higher levels of relationship satisfaction (i.e., less distress), and overall were more satisfied in their lives.”

- Dr. Aaron Rochlen, Associate Professor of Counseling Psychology at the University of Texas-Austin (2007 Study of Stay-at-home Fathers)

“After six years of relatives, friends, neighbors and strangers constantly questioning my decision and doubting my ability to be the primary caregiver, news of the At-Home Dads Convention was welcoming. Each year I have arrived home from the convention reenergized with a greater sense of confidence, pride and purpose in fulfilling my commitment as an at-home dad for my family.”

- Hogan Hilling, at-home dad since 1991 and author of The Modern Mom's Guide to Dads: Ten Secrets Your Husband Won't Tell You

“I never really saw anything masculine about working at a computer in an office, so when I made that transition to home I never really saw myself as less than a man.”

- Rick, Austin, TX on the Today Show (airdate Apr. 2, 2008)

“I (attended the convention) to bond with other Dads, have discussions about what we go through on a daily basis ... and find out what to expect as my daughter gets older.”

- Kirk, Denver, CO (1st time convention attendee)
